A time-tested approach to investing

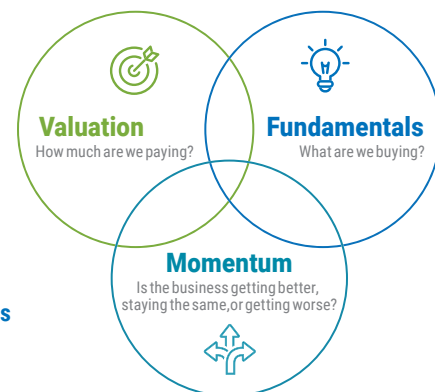

We buy stocks that exhibit:

- Attractive value characteristics
- Strong business fundamentals
- Positive business momentum

We sell stocks based on:

- Valuation: appreciation to price target
- Weakening business fundamentals
- Reversal of momentum

In our experience, portfolios with all three characteristics tend to outperform over time.

Performance commentary

- Global stock markets advanced during the third quarter of 2025, propelled by subsiding trade tensions, continued investor optimism around artificial intelligence (AI), and the anticipation of a new central bank easing cycle in the United States. The risk-on trade tended to outperform, while emerging markets generally outpaced developed markets.
- The Boston Partners Global Long/Short strategy posted a gain for the quarter but underperformed its benchmark, the MSCI World Index. Long positioning within the Consumer Staples and Information Technology sectors dragged on relative results, as did the strategy's short positioning overall. Long holdings in Materials and Energy contributed positively to returns.
- Among detractors, Nomad Foods reported weaker-than-expected Q2 organic sales, with management pointing to the effects of negative weather in Western Europe. That said, we believe the setup for Q3 looks appealing given more favorable comparisons with the prior year's results. Elsewhere, Tokyo Electron's management surprisingly reduced forward guidance despite a supportive demand backdrop for semiconductor capital equipment. Our long positions in both companies trended lower during the quarter.
- As for contributors, Alphabet received a favorable antitrust ruling from a federal judge that did not force the company to sell off its Chrome browser business, removing a valuation overhang. The company continued to enjoy strong advertising trends, managed its costs well, and saw supportive trends in its cloud business. Meanwhile, Oracle reported a backlog nearly three times higher than expectations as the company signed a few large contracts with AI customers for its cloud infrastructure business. Its current cloud business grew 27% in the past quarter and now comprises 48% of the company's revenue.
- Over the year-to-date period, the strategy outperformed its benchmark. Long positions in Industrials and Materials were the biggest contributors to performance, while long positioning in Consumer Staples and short exposure in Financials were the biggest drags on relative results.
- The strategy's largest net exposure at the end of the period was in Materials, where we added several new long positions, including Rio Tinto and Constellium, a mining company and an aluminum products manufacturer, respectively. Real Estate was the smallest net exposure, and as of quarter end, we held three short positions: Aroundtown, Fastighets AB Balder, and Unibail-Rodamco-Westfield.
- Despite this quarter's market gains, we expect volatility to remain elevated in the coming months. Tariff news in the United States, geopolitical tensions, and uncertainty regarding the degree of central banks' capacity for easing could all affect investor sentiment. Nonetheless, we believe there continue to be ample opportunities for stock picking in this environment, and we look forward to providing you with updates in the coming months.

Risk Considerations:

Past performance is not an indication of future results. Current performance may be lower or higher. The investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Returns are historical and include changes in share price and reinvestment of dividends and capital gains. Performance for periods over one year is annualized; less than one year is not annualized. The Fund will engage in short sales which theoretically involves unlimited loss potential since the market price of securities sold short may continuously increase. This may have the effect of increased leverage with risk of loss and cause fluctuations in the market value of the Fund's portfolio to have disproportionately large effects or cause the NAV of the Fund generally to decline faster than it would otherwise. There are additional costs associated with the use of short sales. Short-sale dividends generally reduce the market value of the securities by the amount of the dividend declared; thus increasing the Fund's unrealized gain or reducing the Fund's unrealized loss on the securities sold short. Investments made in small or mid-capitalization companies may be more volatile and less liquid due to limited resources or product lines and more sensitive to economic factors. The Fund may invest in more aggressive investments such as foreign securities which may expose the fund to currency and exchange rate fluctuations, derivatives (futures, options, swaps), REITs (affected by economic factors related to the real estate industry), illiquid and high yield debt (also known as junk bonds), all of which may cause greater volatility and less liquidity. Derivatives may be more sensitive to changes in market conditions. The Fund may experience high portfolio turnover which may result in higher costs and capital gains.

Fiscal Treatment of Investor:

Under current Irish law and practice, the ICAV qualifies as an investment undertaking for the purposes of Section 739B of the Taxes Consolidation Act, 1997, as amended ("TCA") so long as the ICAV is resident in Ireland. Accordingly, it is generally not chargeable to Irish tax on its income and gains. Irish tax can arise on the happening of a "chargeable event" in the ICAV. This includes any payments of distributions to Shareholders, any encashment, repurchase, redemption, cancellation or transfer of Shares and any deemed disposal of Shares as described below for Irish tax purposes arising as a result of holding Shares in the ICAV for a period of eight years or more. Where a chargeable event occurs, the ICAV is required to account for the Irish tax thereon. Please refer to the prospectus for more information regarding taxation. We advise individual investors to consult their financial or tax adviser about the tax consequences of an investment in this fund in their specific circumstances before deciding to invest in the fund.

Investment Terms:

Alpha: A measure of performance on a risk-adjusted basis. Alpha takes the volatility (price risk) of a product and compares its risk-adjusted performance to a benchmark index. The excess return of the product relative to the return of the benchmark index is the alpha. Price-to-Book (P/B): The price per share of a stock divided by its book value (net worth) per share. For a portfolio, the ratio is the weighted average price-to-book ratio of the stocks that it holds. Price/Earnings Ratio: A method of valuing stocks, calculated by dividing the closing price of a company's stock by its annual earnings per share. A higher multiple means investors have higher expectations for future growth and have bid up the stock's price. P/E FY1 is simple measure of one-year earnings per share growth from the prior fiscal year (FY0) to the current fiscal year. Return on Equity: A measure of a corporation's profitability that reveals how much profit a company generates with the money shareholders have invested.
